Communication skills

- Through long time teaching and participation in many seminars and conferences as well as leading a programme and delivering public lectures, I developed the ability to listen and interact while focussing on delivering my message across.
- Managing researchers at a regional level gave me the ability to develop my communication skills understanding individual and local context. My experience at NGO level and engagement with donors and the humanitarian environment widened my horizon and ability to comprehend different situations and enhanced my ability to analyse multi factor and multi- party issues.
- My previous roles included multi-level communications including with donors, communities, NGO's, governments, recipients, and the media. This helped me gain and develop essential interpersonal, communication, speaking and listening skills.

Organisational / managerial skills

- strategic planning, monitoring, and evaluating outcomes related to objectives.
- Designing and implementing outreach programmes and advocacy.

Job-related skills

- Involvement in creating a vision for Centre for Arab Unity Studies.
- Direct involvement in resources allocation.
